Odell Stadium, located in downtown Raleigh, North Carolina, is home to the Carolina Hurricanes and has been the host of numerous NCAA, ACC and NCAA Tournament championship games. The stadium holds more than 40,000 fans and has been host to several of the biggest sports events in the country. The Carolina Hurricanes play in the East Division of the Eastern Conference and will be facing their third ACC opponent in as many years in the ACC Championship. In 2015, Pittsburgh defeated Virginia Tech to win the ACC Championship at the stadium. The event is expected to attract tens of thousands of fans and many celebrations are expected. "The Duke Blue Devils are extremely excited to host the ACC Championship at AT&T Stadium in San Antonio," said Duke Director of Athletics Mike Rhoads in a statement. "We look forward to participating in the ACC Championship in a new part of the country and showcasing our great fans and tradition to an ACC crowd." Saturday will mark the third time that the game is played outdoors. It is also the first time that the ACC Championship will be held in an outdoor stadium and first time that the ACC Championship has taken place in the South since 1990.Q: 0cc13bf012
